A Whale Watching Family Pass Valued at $460.00

Each year magnificent southern humpback whales migrate to and from Antarctica and they pass right by us during the months of June to November.

As these leviathans of the deep make their way through our warm waters, they feed, mate and play in the clear blue waters of Moreton Bay.

Intelligent and naturally curious mammals, the whales greet their visitors with playful behaviour that will both charm and surprise you. You will be awestruck as these gentle giants breach, blow and frolic only metres away!

In conjunction with Brisbane Whale Watching we have a family pass to give away. The prize entitles two adults and two children (4 to 14 years) to a full day whale watching experience.

The prize includes the full day whale watching cruise and buffet lunch. Whale sightings are guaranteed.

The cruise commences boarding at 9.30am for a 10.00am departure from the Redcliffe Jetty.

To enter simply email adz@northlakesmessenger.com.au with "Whale Watching Comp" in the subject line and tell us which months the whales come through Moreton Bay (you shouldn't have to google this one, the answer may be staring you in the face). Entries close Thursday July 14. Good Luck!

NOTE: The prize is for mid-week travel only and must be used before Friday 2nd October 2016.

NOTE: All regular family pass inclusions and disclaimers apply. For more information see www.brisbanewhalewatching.com.au

Leading rail expert to audit MBRL

One of Australia's leading rail signalling experts has been appointed to lead the independent investigation into the Moreton Bay Rail Link (MBRL) Project.

Minister for Transport Stirling Hinchliffe announced Mr Rob Smith, currently contracted to the $20 billion Sydney Metro Northwest Project, would audit the procurement and governance of the signalling system for MBRL.

"Mr Smith is eminently qualified to examine the MBRL project and has more than 20 years of experience in design and project management for rail systems," Mr Hinchliffe said.

"Mr Smith specialises in delivering rail signalling systems and his extensive knowledge will be extremely beneficial to the audit and ensure we can get to the bottom of why the signalling system currently installed does not meet the operational and safety standards found across South East Queensland's rail network."

Mr Hinchliffe announced the independent audit on Monday, 30 May after receiving advice from Queensland Rail about outstanding issues with the signalling system for the rail infrastructure project.

"The audit will investigate the governance and contractual processes for the signalling system and its performance and integration during design and construction," he said.

"Ultimately this audit will determine how the signalling system was selected and why the project cannot be delivered within the expected timeframe.

"This review will run separately to the work being undertaken by Queensland Rail into the requirements of the signalling system in order for Moreton Bay Rail Link to open."

The Department of Transport and Main Roads, Queensland Rail and other parties will provide relevant documents as requested for the audit.

The independent audit will be complete, with final reports handed to the Minister for Transport by the end of July. Mr Smith will lead a team of rail experts to prepare the audit.

The full scope of the review will consider: Governance and Contractual processes for MBRL, including:

- Any signalling system related issues, risks and/or opportunities arising from the decision in 2012 to bring the project under the auspices of the Department of Transport and Main Roads (TMR);
- A review of the signalling system elements of the tendering and contract process;

- Whether the role assigned to Queensland Rail through contractual and/or governance documents and processes provided for appropriate involvement of the rail operator in the assurance processes relating to signalling; and
- Contract milestone payments relating to signalling, and gainshare payments, and the grounds upon which any payments have been made.

Performance and integration of signalling systems during design and construction, including:

- The nature of assurance activities by the project team, Queensland Rail, or other parties to monitor, test, and review signalling systems and signalling system interface/integration;
- The nature of interface/integration issues experienced between multiple signalling systems on the one network; and
- The adequacy of assurance activities, and lessons for future rail contract selection and oversight;
- The processes by which concerns raised by Queensland Rail or other parties regarding the signalling systems or signalling system integration were managed; and
- The assurance program being implemented by Queensland Rail in order to have the project commissioned

Dump Update

Dear Editor, An update regarding the odour emanating from the Dakabin waste facility:

- an investigation in conjunction with Moreton Bay Council workers found that when the initial complaint was placed a couple of months ago the odour was actually emanating from the industrial estate off Boundary Road.
- this issue has now been escalated to the Department of Environment and Heritage Protection.
- recently the odour has appeared to have been arising from the Dakabin waste facility.

I would encourage all North Lakes residents as well as residents from surrounding suburbs to report any odours to either the Moreton Bay Regional Council or to the Department of Environment and Heritage Protection.

Honesty in North Lakes

On the morning of the 12/6/16 to the low life that stole the Sunday Mail from the front of our house in Eastridge.

I would like to let you know that my Dad has just come out of hospital after major surgery and this paper is a way of showing how much I admire my parents. This way my parents can keep up with the daily news.

So for you to go around the streets of North Lakes stealing, the day will come when Karma comes back to greet you big time. May be your parents never taught you that stealing is a criminal act.

A long time resident of North Lakes.

Moreton Bay Rail Link shame

Its no surprise for to me that the new train is delayed. We've been waiting a hundred years anyway. It is a shame though because the traffic around here is crazy nowadays. A real problem.

What strikes me odd about the Moreton Bay Rail is that the construction was handed to the private sector. Why wouldn't Queensland Rail build it? Queensland Rail built the Springfield line and not only did it meet the deadline it was delivered early! It also came in under budget if I recall correctly.

With the exception of giving the job to the wrong people, i dont think we can blame the various governments and council for this one. It seems whoever made the signalling system (let me guess, the cheapest guy?) are at fault.

Looking forward to the results of the investigation.

How do young people today get work experience?

Hi Leonie,

I read your column all the time and find it very interesting and helpful in lots of situations. I always have believed that there should be no one in Australia who is homeless as we have such a good support system and many organizations willing to help. Unfortunately I have now come to the conclusion that sometimes it isn't enough!

I have a 21 year old homeless young lady living with me, she has been a friend of my daughters for a few years. She is a New Zealander and came to Australia about five years ago with both step-mother and step-father due to unfortunate circumstances.

About five months ago she was kicked out of home and came to our place. Initially I thought it would only be a matter of time and they would take her back but I now know that it won't happen, I don't mind and would never see her out on the street. She cannot go back to NZ as there is nowhere for her to go and no one who would help her there.

I have always had a good family bond with my siblings and cousins etc and I find it really crazy that the family unit doesn't seem to exist anymore. My daughter and I have been working with her and trying to guide her trying to get some work but we are finding it difficult to even get volunteer work to gain some work experience in administration or hospitality locally. Everyone requires experience even at entry level!

How do the young people today get that experience? She does not have a license or car and relies on public transport which is very good from here or goes on foot if necessary. Because she is from NZ she is not entitled to any government assistance until she lives here continually for 10 years. We have tried to get help under special circumstances, not that I encourage claiming payments and have always believed there is a job out there for her somewhere, she just has to keep being in peoples face until someone will give her a go. The current application process on line with no idea who you are applying to and where it is, in lots of cases is not helping, even when she approaches places personally, they tell her to apply on line.

I have been in business most of my working life and I believe that if someone keeps coming to ask for work they must be keen enough to give a go if a job comes available. I have been off work for about five years myself due to health issues and hope to be returning soon but it does put a strain on us as my daughter lives with me too and is a single parent having been married and divorced some time ago, she pays her share of expenses and helps with a lot of the young ladies things too.

Is there any other avenue that we could go to help her get some work and/or some financial assistance that you could suggest? How many other young people are in this situation in our beautiful country? We have so much to offer here surely we can get it together somehow.

Thank you,
Lizzy/Deception Bay

Hi Lizzy,

The first thing I would say is that to be best placed to get a job in the current employment conditions, people need to have at least a Cert III or Cert IV in something. I understand that finance is an issue so I would suggest contacting places like Deception Bay Community Youth Programs: www.facebook.com/deceptionbay.communityyouthprograms?fref=nf as they run free courses.

I am not sure how age limits on different courses residency affects eligibility but this is a good place to start finding answers. The next thing I think people should consider is that as much as we think applying for advertised jobs is the way to get employment there is a large amount of jobs that can be sourced from sending expressions of interest to businesses you can get transport to.

Start with a competitive resume and cover letter (if you don't know how to produce these it's well worth having someone like myself create them) and then sit down at the computer and use a search engine to identify businesses in your area. I like to use Trulocal to look for businesses, their information, contact emails and so on. You simply put in the kind of business you are looking to work at and a list of these will come up in your browser. So if you were a fork lift operator you might type in "warehouses" in Trulocal with your post code and lots of warehouses will be listed. You then click on their web page and look at their "about us" page. Tailor your cover letter to the information you glean here. Next ring them and ask for the name, title and email address of the person to send your expression of interest for employment to and do this to every suitable employer in your area. In the cover letter you may consider making an offer to work for one week unpaid to prove suitability. Also make sure that your young lady identifies herself as someone looking and eager for work on social pages such as www.facebook.com/NorthLakeCommunityParentsAndBusinesses/?fref=ts

The other options may be to start a small enterprise herself with your support. My clients tell me that there is a shortage of baby sitters and pet sitters in the area and although these may not bring in a great deal of money, they are a way to network, meet people and broaden social interactions.

I hope you have found some guidance here.

Fraud: Targeting Queensland

Scams and fraud are an unfortunate part of life, but there are many misconceptions surrounding the issue. Fraudsters are often not small time opportunists who prey on your lack of due diligence - they are skillful, nimble, dark organisations with resources, and they're adept at what they do.

KIRK BELLOTTI INVESTIGATES

Fraud has never been so evident in Australian households as it is right now and in most cases we aren't even aware when we are being defrauded. Queensland was named as the second highest group of victims rate for fraud in Australia according to a recent Fraud Barometer Report (KPMG).

To put this into a dollar figure, the greatest victims of personal fraud are investors who lost $27.5m last year nationally. This is more than the banking sector who lost $23.7m. Unlike investors, banks appear to accept these losses and offset them by passing on these losses in the form of fees and interest to consumers.

If you have ever received a phone call during the evening from a nice man or lady offering to change your life, improve your retirement or offer you an investment that sounds unreasonably fortuitous, it's likely you have been a subject of a attempted fraud; and those who accept these too good to be true offers, often find out they have been defrauded weeks or months after the fact.

Cold calling is the weapon of choice used by organised crime syndicates operating call centres for no other reason other than to scam and as many people as can and make (steal) as much money as possible before usually closing down.

These call centres have been referred to boiler rooms by police due to the high pressure tactics used to induce victims in contributing money into a false and non existent investment. Boiler rooms are so well organised and professional they mimic a bank or investment company often sharing similar names and displaying equally professional websites and testimonials.

The staff are often well spoken and knowledgeable on the product they sell, swearing by its results and talk of their own successful investments. They know your name and where you live and may even be able to appear to know your situations.

The boiler room company is almost always registered with the Australian Security and Investments Commission (ASIC), have a Australian Business Number (ABN) and a number of offices and staff around Australia and the world. There are no adverse reports on the internet and may even have a series of favourable testimonials from happy investors who have paid off their home loans, paid kids private school fees and bought a nice car, boat or returned from a overseas holiday.

So what's not to believe? Well, all these claims are false and as much as we want to believe there is a easy way to make lots on money; there is not, unless you're a operator of one of these scams.

Boiler rooms and highly organised criminal syndicates run by professionals who have experience in running these types of scams and have overcome law enforcement agencies by keeping ahead of the police for years.

In most cases, the boiler room management have been charged with fraud offences in the past and have learnt from their mistakes, improving their performances and become better at avoiding police detection.

They do this by obtaining professional advice from legal and financial advisors who sometimes may be involved in the scam or choose not to know the details of the operation.

The returns for boiler room operators, their staff and their professional advisers can be millions of dollars in the short space of a few months, tax free.

In one boiler room operation on the Gold Coast during 2011, the criminal syndicate scammed approximately $6m in three months, with telemarketers and sales staff receiving thousands of dollars in tax free commissions each week. This was done with the offer of high returns investments in a very short period of time. Investors would sign up to this investment with well written contracts and a members only log in order for investors to watch their investment grow.

however this person was happy to receive a small payment to open a business account and register the scam with ASIC, sometimes years earlier giving the impression the business was a long standing one.

As for the police response, if you have ever been a victim of fraud and attempted to report this to the your local police station, experience has shown that most police are not trained and in some instance not interested or willing to take on such matters.

The reality of this was all money transferred into the investment was drawn out from the boiler room accounts within days and moved to the criminal syndicates boss. The member accounts were manipulated with false growth and allowed victims to believe they had a positive investment further delaying any reports to police.

This is due to uniform staff at stations having little specific experience in fraud reporting or investigations and often mistakenly referring fraud victims to other agencies like ASIC or the bank.

In some cases police refuse to take a compliant believing the matter is a civil and contractual matter gone bad. In some cases, fraud victims have identified the boiler room operation from another state and when police are advised, victims are incorrectly advised they need to travel to the other state and report the matter to police in that state. This is not correct.

The entire operate would shut down after a few months with all phone and email contact being cut. This left investors, now victims with no records as the entire operation was false and unlawful. Inquires with ASIC would identify a director highly organised criminal syndicates run by professionals who have experience in running these types of scams and have overcome law enforcement agencies by keeping ahead of the police for years

Boiler room operators are aware of these issues and adopt their plans to exploit this. It is rare that any business will ring you at home at ask you to invest or ask for money in any form whether it is at that time or at a latter date.

to report a fraud matter to police that ensures your matter is taken seriously.

North Harbour development

Public comment invited on changes to the Moreton Bay Marine Park

The Department of National Parks, Sport and Recreation (NPSR) is seeking public comments on proposed changes to the Moreton Bay Marine Park and the Deception Bay declared fish habitat area for the proposed North Harbour Development in and adjacent to the Caboolture River.

Environment Minister Steven Miles said the private developer would place a public notification in newspapers shortly, and comments would close 30 days following publication.

"NPSR requires the proponent to undertake public notification ahead of any legislative amendments being made," Dr Miles said.

"Public feedback will inform the department's recommendation to me on the proposed changes to the Marine Park and the declared Fish Habitat Area.

Member for Murrumba Chris Whiting said the local community could have their say on what would be substantial works.

"A works area is proposed to be declared in the Moreton Bay Marine Park to allow for capital dredging of a navigation channel and breaking the banks of the Caboolture River to create a marina entrance.

"These works also require revocation of part of the Deception Bay declared Fish Habitat Area.

"It is also proposed that the Caboolture River section of the declared Fish Habitat Area be downgraded from a management A area to a management B area to allow for future erosion-control works.

"These works are likely to be required as proposed channel dredging is predicted to worsen existing river bank erosion," Mr Whiting said.

Member for Morayfield Mark Ryan said the local community would have 30 days to make a submission on the proposal.

"It is important that we get the balance right, with appropriate development and environmental protection reflecting community expectations.

Interested persons are invited to make a submission on this proposal to the Department of National Parks, Sport and Racing by email marine.policy@npsr.qld.gov.au

Changing attitudes to alcohol consumption

Excessive alcohol consumption significantly increases the risk of harm from chronic disease, injury and premature death, but new research has found a societal shift in attitudes towards drinking may be underway

DR ANITA, BRISBANE NORTH PHN WRITES

For most people, the main risks they might commonly associate with drinking too much might be impaired judgment and coordination and the occasional hangover.

While these physical effects are often the source of jokes and the occasional blockbuster film, it does need to be acknowledged that heavy drinking is linked to a range of serious social problems.

One study estimated that the cost to the Australian community was $15.3 billion in 2004–05 for alcohol-related social problems, like crime, road accidents or lost workplace productivity.

The price paid for harmful drinking, in terms of health effects, is arguably a lot higher.

Over the longer term, alcohol dependence leads to chronic conditions like high blood pressure, cardiovascular diseases, cirrhosis of the liver, some types of dementia, mental health problems and various cancers.

For all of these reasons, it is positive to hear that Australians are increasingly thinking about the effects of alcohol on their health and wellbeing.

According to research commissioned by Dry July, a fund-raising campaign that encourages people to give up alcohol for the month of July, more people (60 per cent) say they are conscious of the impact of alcohol on their health, than when last measured a year ago.

The research also found that 63 per cent of drinkers try to minimize this health impact by 'offsetting' their alcohol consumption. Strategies used include eating well (40 per cent), exercising (34 per cent), or only drinking on the weekends (25 per cent).

Dry July says almost a quarter of Aussies are actually drinking less each week than the same time last year (24 per cent), and of those, almost half (47 per cent) are reducing intake due to weight concerns and/or physical health.

But the glass may still be half empty because, despite the known health risks, 16 per cent of adults are drinking more each week than last year.

Worryingly, almost 30 per cent of younger adults (aged 18–24) believe it is now more socially acceptable to drink a lot.

Dr Cris Beer, celebrity doctor and author of books such as 'Healthy Liver', said it was incredible to see the positive change in behaviour among Aussies towards drinking.

"Also, it's great that many of us are eating well and exercising to keep healthy, but it's important to remember that it doesn't counteract alcohol consumption or allow you to drink as much as you like, then go for a run the next day, for example," Dr Beer said.

"The Australian guidelines still recommend no more than two standard drinks on any day to reduce your risk of alcohol-related disease," she said.

Dry July CEO and co-founder Brett Macdonald said the research showed Australians were increasingly aware of their own health and are looking to make positive changes to their habits.

"This is why we're encouraging everyone to sign up for Dry July – not only do you get to make a real difference to people affected by cancer but you'll also notice your own drinking habits and the value of a healthy, balanced lifestyle," Mr Macdonald said.

Now in its ninth year, Dry July has raised more than $24 million to provide better services and environments for cancer patients and their families and carers.

Makes 6-8 generous modern style burgers, all ingredients are either in your cupboard or found easily at the supermarket

Longganisa is a type of Filipino sausage, It's sweet and savoury, sticky and crispy. My husband describes them as 'Asian rissoles' so we've westernised it and made it into a burger patty. There are many ways to make Longganisa but this is an Aussie-fied version of the recipe I grew up with. They're no harder to make than rissoles and the kids love them too.

Longganisa Patty Ingredients:

- 1 kilo of mince pork (you can use beef or chicken, but pork is traditional)
- ¼ cup of brown sugar
- A teaspoon each of salt and pepper
- 3 tablespoons of Worcestershire sauce
- 3 tablespoons light soy sauce
- 1 tablespoon of oyster sauce
- 1 tablespoon crushed garlic
- 1 cup of breadcrumbs
- 1 tablespoon of sugar cane vinegar (can get from Asian grocery store, or just use white vinegar)

Note: Traditional longganisa are bright red. Coloured with saltpeter or food colouring. We don't bother with this part.

Method:

1. In a big bowl mix all the ingredients and roll into generous balls and flatten – just like an Aussie rissole. They're best left to refrigerate overnight (or freeze for later) to get the flavours to set in, but can be cooked straight away.
2. Pan fry slowly in oil on low heat until cooked. (frying quickly will burn the sugar and soy, it caramelises nicely when cooked slowly). Put the cheese on top of the patty a minute before you remove the patty from the fry pan it so it melts.

THIS WEEK'S

READER RECIPE

ASIAN FUSION LONGGANISA BURGER

Burger Ingredients:

- Brioche buns (you can buy these in Aldi now)
- Sliced cheese – any you prefer
- Finely diced red onion
- 3 table spoons egg mayonnaise
- 2 tablespoons dijonaise
- 1 tablespoon tomato paste
- Shop bought salad mix (we use baby spinach and rocket)

Method:

1. Mix the mayo, dijonaise and tomato paste in a bowl and set aside
2. Lightly toast the insides of the brioche buns in a frypan. Spread a little of the sauce on the bottom half the bun, sprinkle diced onions on the sauce and place the patty
3. Mix the salad in the remaining sauce. Scoop this saucy salad mix on top of the cheese. Put the top bun on, serve with sweet potato chips!

Enjoy, May

Local students have a blast at the launch of Moreton Bay Region STEM Fest

STEM Fest is an exciting Annual event that gives state secondary schools in the Moreton Bay Region knowledge and experience in the areas of Science, Technology, Engineering and Mathematics, well beyond what they would normally experience in their schools.

The goal is to entice students to learn skills that will be requisite for future employment in an increasingly tech led world and demystify the university experience for students.

Last week saw 240 local students from Deception Bay SHS, Burpengary SHS, Dakabin SHS, Murrumba SSC, North Lakes College, Aspley SHS, Pine Rivers SHS and Bray Park SHS descend on QUT Gardens Point campus for the launch of STEM Fest 2016.

The day began with an address from keynote speaker and ACRV director Professor Peter Corke on why we are working to give robots the ability to see and what impacts this could have on the future.

Then it was on to workshops where the kids enjoyed navigating obstacle courses with iPad controlled Sphero rolling robots, learned programming for LEGO's EV3 robots and used basic coding to control the tiny but powerful Ozobots. They were then treated to a tour of the normally off-limits facilities of the Australian Centre for Robotic Vision (ACRV).

The day ended with a panel discussion of IT and robotics experts and the kids had a chance to question the experts.

The students will take this knowledge and compete in an eight week science investigation based on this year's National Science Week theme - Drones, Droids and Robots.

The project will see teachers working closely with experts and students on a group robotics and coding challenge that will culminate in the students creating their own miniature robots capable of completing specific tasks.

Keeping the festival vibes high throughout the weekend will be some of Brisbane's best local funk, RnB and soul bands performing live, while a program of free fun and games for the kids will keep the little ones happy.

The festival runs Friday June 14 to Sunday June 26 and can be found at The Laneway, Westfield North Lakes, Cnr Anzac Ave and North Lakes Drive.

Entry is free and all are welcome but as it's a fully licensed event, children must be accompanied by an adult at all times.

We can't wait.

RODENT PROBLEM?

Rats and mice become more of a problem during the colder winter months as they move inside seeking warmth and shelter. Rodents are carriers of germs and diseases and can be very destructive, often chewing through wiring, timber and furniture. The best course of action is to have a treatment completed by Sandgate Pest Control and follow the advice given by the qualified technician to rodent proof your home. Rodent proofing your home is an important step and does not have to be difficult. However, proofing your home will not remove the rodents already living in your home it will only help prevent them from returning in the future.

To help protect your home, Sandgate Pest Control are offering all North Lakes Messenger readers a FREE ROOF VOID RODENT TREATMENT with every Timber Pest Inspection. This offer is valid for all inspections completed before the end of July 2016.

Queensland Government slams the door on foreign investors Says REIQ

The Queensland Government is treating the property sector like an ATM once again, with their announcement today that property transaction from foreign buyers will attract an additional three per cent surcharge.

REIQ CEO Antonia Mercorella said the Labor Government's decision was disappointing.

"Curtis Pitt made a firm commitment to Queenslanders and the property industry in 2015 that he would not raise stamp duty or increase costs or fees for foreign buyers.

"He said, 'Queensland is open for business' – but today he's slammed the door shut," Ms Mercorella said.

"The State Government has failed to consult with industry groups on this matter and if they had, we would have told them how fragile the market is at the moment," Ms Mercorella said.

"This could not come at a worse time – regional Queensland is struggling and we have rising vacancy rates along with falling job rates.

"Regional Queensland – where two-thirds of us live – needs all the investment help it can find and by adding another tax on the top of what they already rake in, the State Government is further threatening the viability of the property market.

This 3% additional surcharge on stamp duty is a significant impost for the non-concessional buyer. On a property sold for $600,000, where stamp duty amounts to a little over $20,000, an additional 3% would be an additional $18,000.

"That's not a small amount – it almost doubles the stamp duty,"

Ms Mercorella said.

"This is potentially disastrous news for our apartment market where some estimates have foreign buyers at around 15% to 20% across Brisbane in the new apartment market.

"The Gold Coast apartment market also relies on foreign investment levels and this could be a significantly negative impact on that market.

"Mr Pitt's additional surcharge on those buyers will significantly impact that market, at a time when we can't afford to lose buyers," she said.

Until the Government specified exactly what constitutes a foreign buyer, it remained unclear who could be caught in the definition.

"It's not necessarily someone living overseas. It could be a foreign national who's been living here for many years," she said.

Ms Mercorella said this measure also added a new layer of red tape that the industry did not need.

In his press club address Mr Pitt also announced a $5000 increase to the first-home buyer's grant, however, it would remain accessibly only for new builds.

"We welcome the increase in the first home buyers' grant from $15,000 to $20,000 but it needs to be broadened to existing establishments.

"Regional Queensland does not need stimulus for new dwelling construction – it has an oversupply of housing.

"This is a poorly thought-out policy flip that reflects a deep lack of understanding of what is happening outside of the southeast corner," Ms Mercorella said.

"I thought this Government would fight harder for regional Queensland."

North Lakes Community Women's Group Inc. News

Written by Sam Stevens Publicity Officer NLCWGI

This was one of our more interesting Monthly General Meetings with local and overseas visitors, new Members and an agenda with plenty of member input and lots of fun. Two charitable submissions were overwhelmingly approved: The supply of technical equipment for a student of the Woody Point Special School: A contribution to the Trust Fund of a very special four year old Cystic Fibrosis sufferer. This was our Groups rewarding effort to assist those in need in our local Community.

Following our meeting we had the opportunity to peruse and purchase from the 'Pop-up-Shop', Bears & Old Lace, presented by Julie Duncan. Julie set up a wonderful display of old time handmade items, tattered lace memory books, collages and truly cuddly looking old fashioned Teddy Bears. Thank you for sharing Julie.

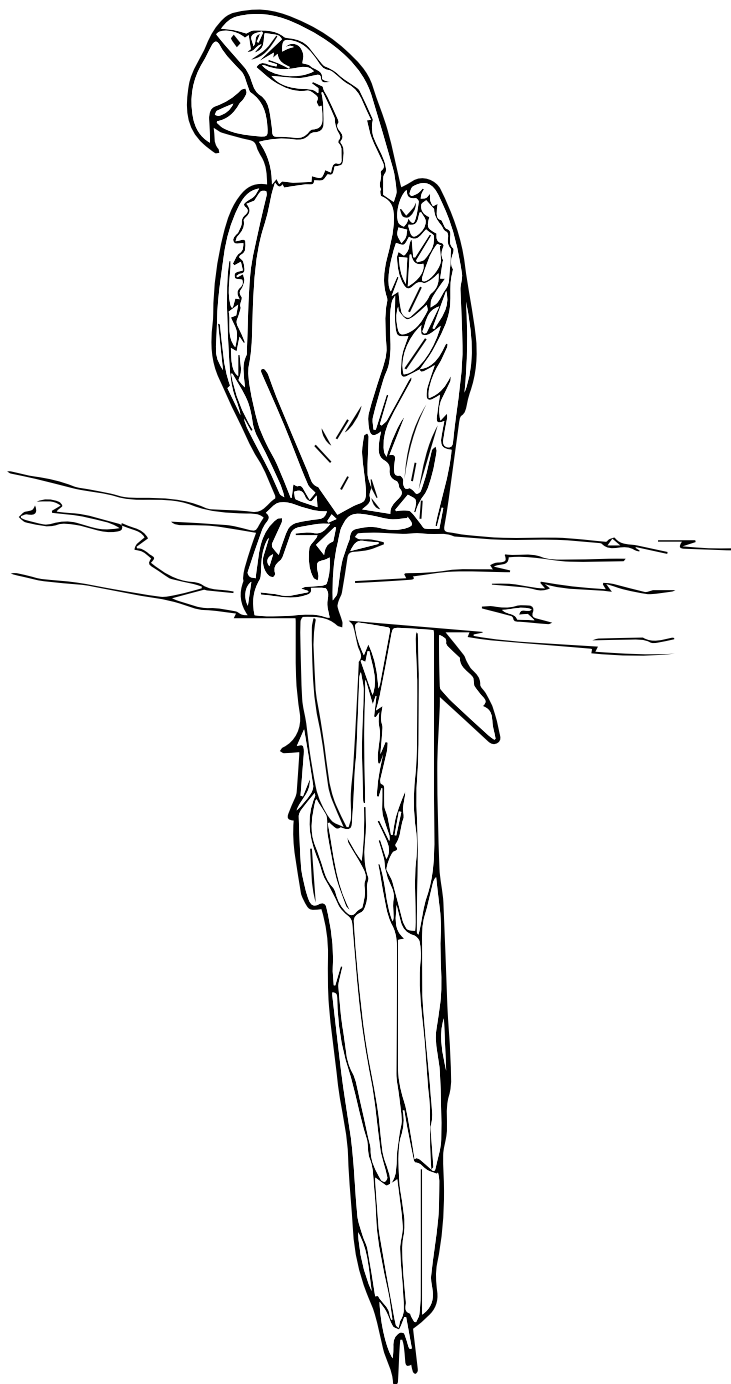

Tuesday 21st June 09:45 CRAFT DAY – A combination of hands on involvement in a variety of crafts. Come along even if you are not involved in a craft. Sit and chat or bring a game along, just be there. Registration for craft events is essential.

Tuesday 28th June 11:30 LUNCH - Mon Komo, 99 Marine Pde, Redcliffe. The Caribbee Restaurant offers $15.00 lunch specials and $19.00 favourites. A grand venue in a grand spot by the beach. Registration is essential.

Tuesday 5th July 09:45 MONTHLY GENERAL MEETING – Yes, another MGM where we gather together to conduct general business, conjure up ideas for our events calendar, catch up with one another and have a bit of fun over a lovely cuppa.

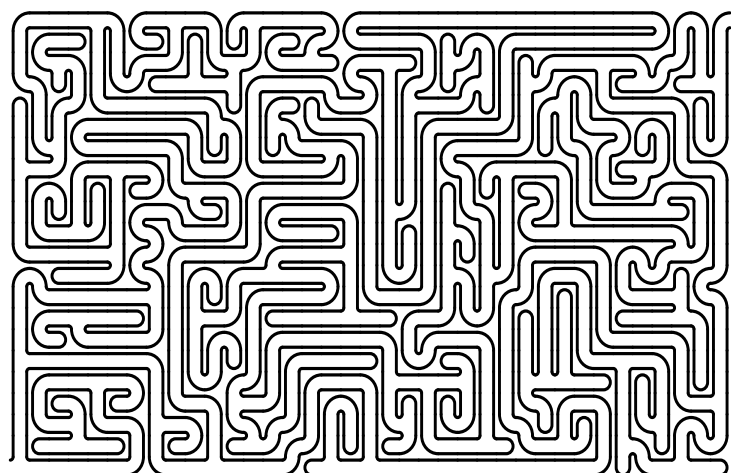

Our meetings are open to all women in North Lakes/Mango Hill – Moreton Bay district. Please refer to our listing under the Community Notice Board. For more information contact Julie, 3886 4552; Colleen, 0418 658 442; Carmen, 3491 9410.
